Happy pigs, happy farmers

I believe the pig industry deserves more attention as it plays a crucial role in providing animal protein across Asia. The more I delve into the fascinating world of these remarkable animals, the more I find it intriguing.

It's truly exhilarating to see that, as a dedicated community, we can explore ways to optimize their growth potential while ensuring they live in a comfortable and humane environment.

What are your specialties in the pig industry?

I'm an observer looking at what's happening in the industry with a neutral mind.

I always love connecting people, helping them make their professional life easier and more efficient.

What are the projects that you've been most proud of?

I've been an admirer of Asia's livestock industry for over 10 years, working as an industry journalist and editor of Asian Pork Magazine.

Your current focus:

I'm eager to connect with industry professionals who are thoughtfully seeking ways to enhance efficiency while keeping the well-being of pigs at the forefront.

Networking is one of my strong suits, and I aim to bring people in the industry together.

The pig industry in Vietnam is currently experiencing a significant transformation, making efficiency vital for survival. Precision technologies are now at the heart of this evolution.
